The Weather Yesterday,

large as pigeons eggs fell with a dull sailing ship from the Pacific and here thud; at 3 came rain and a wind from the west; at 4:30 more wind from the logs. On the shores saw mills are seen west and rain; at 5:45 it rained; as the at a considerable distance apart. Estabstruggling daylight disclosed lateral lines of slanting rain descending; at 8:30 the sun shone out in all its winsome strength and gladsome beauty; at 9, wind from the same west drove flying scud before it; behind it dire results in the sheltered covas is carried on indifferently. At one point there is a large might have ensued; at 10 heavy rain fell; at 11.25 darkness was upon the face of the deep and the spirit of the storm moved over that extends three miles back into the the land; at 12 the sun again smiled upon the sons and daughters of men; at 12.25 days and the spirit of the storm moved over that extends three miles back into the forest. Besides the above industries, there are one or two dry docks, where are one or two dry docks, where rain fell; at 12:40 hail fell; at 12:50 snow ressels for the river are built and where fell; at 1 r. ≤. the glass began to fall; at repairs are done. The observations here noted are from the deck of a steamboat. fell; at 1 r. m. the glass began to fall; at 140 the rain fell also, and nothing being done to stop the fall of these several constituents, the falling process went on; at 2:15 the same perverse breeze from the tumbling western main sprang up once more; at 3 a circling wreath of pogonip swooped down from Washington Territory and enveloped this section of the commonwealth in a gloom which lasted till the lifting clouds showed a sunlit sky; then it began to freeze; over the lull came on the firm of the commonwealth in a gloom which lasted till the lifting clouds showed a sunlit sky; then it began to freeze; over the lull came on the firm of the form the folds of which as the firm of the form the folds of which as the firm of the form the folds of which as the firm of the form the folds of which as the firm of the form the folds of which as the firm of the form the folds of which as the firm of the form the folds of which as the firm of a storm cloud from the folds of which as the firm of a storm cloud from the folds of which as the firm of a storm of the form the folds of which as the firm of a storm the common the firm of the form the follows and over the cliffs that the firm of the form the follows and over the cliffs that the follows and over the cliffs that such things as California cysters. Along the Docks.

At Kinney's dock lie the Highland Light, Helicon and Geo. S. Homer, all three American vessels. The first two are ngaged, and have been for sometime; the Homer is waiting for a few hundred tons to complete cargo. Her voyage here was in the nature of an experiment. The vessel is experimental in her construction, having both sails and steam, the latter motor being of use in beating around the stormy southern cape. The trip to the Columbia has not been wholly saisfactory, partly owing to the delay experienced in obtaining return cargo. At the O. R. & N. dock everything was bustling yesterday. The lee King was discharging ballast; the Sourceign of the Seas lightering cargo; the Imperial was about through; the Anticerp was taking on her foreign load, and the Sea King, just below, discharging railroad from.

Two more of the Queenstown bound fleet cleared vesterday afternoon, the Glenper's with 60,838 bushels wheat, valued at $57,490, and the Lake Erie, with 48,566 bushels, worth $49,527. the Homer is waiting for a few hundred
